

Two-Year Mark

McDonald's Says 'Thanks Again'

"Going to McDonald's for a hamburger" has become a habit in Torrance and Sunday marks the second anniversary of the hamburger champion at 1452 W. Carson St.

Gary Garner, operator, stated, "The best way I can celebrate this anniversary is to say thanks to local families for accepting McDonald's so readily as part of the community and for making our success possible. Their enthusiasm for McDonald's has been tremendous, and a truly heartwarming experience for me."

The local McDonald's is part of the nationwide chain of McDonald's hamburger restaurants, which has sold more than a billion hamburgers since it was started in 1955, and now numbers 615 units in 45 states.

Locally, McDonald's golden arches have become a landmark in the short space of two years with a menu restricted to just 10 items—hamburgers, cheeseburgers, French fries and drinks—to speed service and keep prices down.

"McDonald's has found many ways to turn the preparation and serving of hamburgers into a science—and to pass the savings of this scientific approach along to the customers by holding the 15-cent price line," says Garner. "Not only in quality of food and in atmosphere, but in consideration for the family budget is McDonald's keyed to the family trade."

Seeing Double? Not Really, Just Twins

Dena, Dana, David and Darrill. . . . New tongue-twister? Not really.

Kindergarten teachers at Hamilton School in North Torrance may have thought they were practicing double-talk when they called the roll last Wednesday, but they were more likely to think they were seeing double on the playground than in the classroom.

Reason? Two sets of twins, Dena Torri and Dana Lorri Shelbourn, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Shelbourn of 18308 Fairview Lane, and David and Darrill Abate, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Abate of 18608 St. Andrews Place, were among the kindergarten crop which started school at Hamilton.

Dr. Dale Wickstrom, principal separated the twins in classroom assignments; but twin brothers and sisters did get together in the schoolyards before they went their separate scholastic ways.

WHILE THE twins sat in a circle on a mat on the kindergarten floor, they learned about the people in their new world—the school secretary, the nurse, the custodians, and the principal. Mrs. Shelbourn and Mrs. Abate watched and listened.

The twins joined their classmates in drawing pictures of these new people while Mrs. Marks told the mothers how they could help the children start to school on the right foot. A few moments later two mothers tipped into Mrs. Harper's room.

"Now's the time for them to learn responsibility," she was saying. "The children are ready to put their own coats and sweaters, and to tie their own shoes." Mrs. Shelbourn smiled at Mrs. Abate.

At 10 o'clock the first day of kindergarten was over. Teachers waved goodbye to mothers and assured them they would be welcome to come back if their child still needed them there. A pair of brothers and a pair of sisters ran out of separate rooms and met in the schoolyard. Reaching for their mother's hands, they bade the teacher goodbye.

"Bye Dena, 'Bye Dana, 'Bye David, 'Bye Darrill," came the reply.
